

Roman Kumpost Profile

Roman Kumpost has been Vice President of the Czech Olympic Committee since 2016. Before joining the NOC he competed as an international-level athlete and was a coach and manager at the highest-level, providing him with extensive experience in elite sport.

Roman has been instrumental in the development of the NOC and has helped strengthen its relationships with all the main stakeholders in the Olympic Movement. He has helped spread Olympism throughout the Czech Republic, and provided Czech athletes with the best possible platform to succeed at the Olympic Games.

Roman holds a number of other important roles in the Olympic Movement, including being a member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Evaluation Commission for the Olympic Winter Games 2026. His prominence in the Czech winter sports movement led to his election as an International Ski Federation (FIS) Council member in 2010 – a position he still holds today.

Roman has been key to bringing major sporting events and conferences to Europe and has led multiple successful national, continental and international events over the past 15 years. In his capacity as Vice President of the Czech Olympic Committee, he played an integral role in Prague being awarded the European Olympic Committees (EOC) General Assembly in 2015 and the Association of National Olympic Committees (ANOC) General Assembly in 2017 and was at the forefront of organising both events. He also served as President of the Organising Committee of the Liberec 2009 FIS Nordic World Ski Championships (2004 – 2007), president of Organising Committee of EOWF 2011 and president of Organising Committee of Nordic Junior World Championship 2013.

Outside of his roles in sport, Roman is a successful mechanical engineering business executive. He is the CEO of Czech-based company STEINEL Technik s.r.o, as well as owner and CEO of both TERZET spol. s.r.o and SMS Design s.r.o. He holds a degree in machinery from the Technical University of Liberec.
